

P.N. Los Alcornocales

SENDERO DE VALDEINFIERNO

This beautiful path is set on the public hill that gives it its name, and parallel to the gorge granting it high levels of humidity. Its itinerary brings to us its most distinctive vegetal component, the "canutos". In them one can find lomatas dentatas and rhododendrons, here known as ojaranzos, one of the most emblematic bushes in the park. The leafiness of its exuberant vegetation of alder trees, gall oaks laden with moss, and ferns provide a gratifying freshness. The trail is low difficulty and its first section is accessible for people with physical disabilities.

LA CALZADA DEHESA BOYAL

La Calzada is a trail that brings us close to a path believed to be of Roman origin, being known as such by the inhabitants of Castellar de la Frontera. Surrounded by cistus plants, we reach a fortified watchtower whose initial purpose was surveillance and, then, with construction taking place in the 10th century and of clear Islamic influence, as part of a castle. It is worth noting that this fortification has been inhabited until present times.

ARROYO DE SAN CARLOS DEL TIRADERO

The main attractions of this trail are divided between the walk through a thick forest of gall oaks in a natural space accompanied by cork oaks, and the bank of the beautiful stream where it ends. The abundance of water, soft temperatures, moderate sunshine and its particular soil have made this oak forest possible, in visual contrast with the alder tree gallery forest flanking its course.

P.N. del Estrecho

SENDERO COLADA DE LA COSTA - HUERTA GRANDE

This narrow path that uses a cattle track on the coast passes by the littoral cliffs from Tarifa to Algeciras. The itinerary centers its attention on the impressive views of the African continent along its 16 kilometers, and on the geological formations of the walls of the cliffs and the abrasion platforms of foreshore areas. The trail's intrigue levels raise as we come along bunkers, former Guardia Civil stations and other surveillance and defense constructions. The walking route finishes at the Huerta Grande visitor centre.

FARO CAMARINAL

Located between the Bolonia cove and Zahara, this trail leads to Cabo de Gracia, topped by an old watchtower which now serves as the Camarinal Lighthouse. There await the traveler extraordinary sights and the flight of seabirds, such as the shearwater or the gannet. During the last portion of this trail, you can enjoy the beautiful, panoramic view of the dune of Bolonia and the sublime Mare del Cañuto.

P.N. de La Breña y Marismas del Barbate

SENDERO DEL ACANTILADO

This trail ambles by the edge of the Acantilado de Barbate, a spectacular vertical cliff whose itinerary may be travelled in both directions, with a midway landmark, the Tower of el Tajo, itself with impressive panoramic views. These walls have been shaped by water, and its permeability has given way to the formation of aquifers that spring off the cliff and receive the name of Los Caños (the Pipes) and the Playa de la Yerbabuena (Mint Beach).

JARILLO - TORRE DE MECA

The outset of this pathway is at the El Jarillo Recreational area, progressing through a route among stone pine trees. The path takes us to the Recreational Area of Majales del Sol, where a eucalyptus arborum can be observed, a collection of ten varieties used for experimental purposes. Leaving behind the main path and following the indications we will reach the end of the trail, the Torre de Meca and the Trafalgar outlook, from which to enjoy the panoramic views of the Tómbolo de Trafalgar and Los Caños de Meca.

P.N. Bahía de Cádiz

PUNTA DEL BOQUERÓN

Along this comfortable walk on the beach of el Castillo we will discover that we are at the end of a sandy back-shore, the Punta del Boquerón. To one side we have the caño de Sancti-Petri, one of the best preserved marshland areas in the Park; to the other side, an area that, depending on the ebb or flow, may be submerged. Further inland, the dunes, sand accumulated by the wind.

TRES AMIGOS - RÍO ARILLO

Using the old salt works of Tres Amigos, the course of this path brings us close to one of the most interesting bird-sanctuaries of the Parque Natural Bahía de Cádiz. The itinerary starts at the Camposoto beach car park, progressing to the South, until reaching a series of observatories that bring closer to the view the waders, with their long, thin and curved beaks; among other species, stilts, dunlins, avocets and spoonbills. The colorful flamingos are habitual inhabitants of this area, but the most common species are seagulls, alongside the ever-present waders.

SUBIDA AL ALJIBE

The route starts through an oak forest of imposing centenary specimens, to subsequently continue among gall oaks, nature which, in the winter, beautifies with water-filled streams and numerous ferns. As we advance, we see a mountain-top wasteland of reddish soil and bush, with the odd cork oak, squat in the face of weather conditions. Finally, this restricted access path merges with that of the Saucedá.

RÍO HOZGARGANTA

The path runs through the surroundings of this river and very near the village of Jimena de la Frontera. It allows us to identify a form of clean yet traditional source of energy, the mills. We come across an enormous water canal, el Cao, built at the end of the 18th century to power an iron foundry known as the Fábrica de Bombas, which helped in the siege of Gibraltar and was subsequently restructured into a wheat mill.

SENDERO LA TEJA

The trail begins making a small loop on a hillside, where we can witness the effects that forest management has had on this range, in particular the removal of herbivores. Starting in 2001, a model based on enclosures, impeding access to large herbivores, and repopulation was implemented. The model has borne fruit and now the natural regeneration of trees and undergrowth is a fact.

GARGANTA DEL PUERTO OSCURO

An oak forest surrounds this short hike which also shares in interest the peaceful pond of El Picacho and the final section of the brook that names it. Puerto oscuro forms a valley and flows into River Barbate, one of the most important in the province of Cadiz. On this way, we may contemplate remains that bear witness to activities such as bakery, stockbreeding, and coal industry.

RÍO GUADALMESÍ

This path receives its name from Arabic Guadalmesí, River of the Women. Its unique vegetation takes us back thousands of years, when the Mediterranean was dominated by tropical weather and forests of small trees with leaves similar to those of the laurel tree, hence its name of Laurisilva. We can still enjoy the presence of these plants on the banks of River Guadalmesí and other parts of Los Alcornocales.

SENDERO LA TEJA

The trail begins making a small loop on a hillside, where we can witness the effects that forest management has had on this range, in particular the removal of herbivores. Starting in 2001, a model based on enclosures, impeding access to large herbivores, and repopulation was implemented. The model has borne fruit and now the natural regeneration of trees and undergrowth is a fact.

P.N. Sierra de Grazalema

RÍO MAJACEITE

It is a nice route from El Bosque to Benamahoma, in the company of the River Majaceite, which is also known as River of El Bosque and home to the elusive otters. You will discover an excellent gallery forest, with black poplars, ashes and elm trees, and you will observe different means to take advantage of the course of the water to generate energy, such as mills and the Eléctrica de la Sierra, the old power plant. Of particular interest is the visit to the Ecomuseum Molino de Benamahoma.

SALTO DEL CABRERO

This path, which takes off from the village of Benaocaz and leads to an overlook, has the main interest of allowing for the close contemplation of the unusual nature of El Salto del Cabrero. Being one of the most representative spots of the Sierra de Grazalema, its name makes reference to a fault of impressive vertical walls, eighty meters deep and separated by a fifty meter breach.

LLANOS DE RABEL

This path (also known as Llanos del Revés) sets off in the vicinity of Puerto de Los Acebuches, to then go deep into the Reservation Area of the Natural Park, reaching the Sierra del Pinar's shaded slopes. Little by little we approach the Pinsapar and it will not be difficult to see one of the griffin vultures that inhabit the near Garganta Verde. This path has restricted access, requiring a special permit issued by the Consejería de Medio Ambiente of the Andalusian government.

LA CALZADA ROMANA

This track connects Benaocaz and Ubrique following a well-preserved Roman road, the origins of which are described on the trail's informative signs. One of the most typical excursions of the Natural Park, its final part, towards Ubrique, goes deep into an oak forest, scattered with cattle farms. Once within the town, it is definitively worth visiting some of its typical fountains.

PUERTO DE LAS PRESILLAS

This trail, that starts in El Puerto de el Boyar, will offer us the opportunity to learn about one of the mountain ranges with more personality of the Parque Natural Sierra de Grazalema: the Sierra del Endriñal. Its limestone formations, the elusive Iberian wild goat, its panoramic views and ethnological legacy in the shape of ice pits, limekilns, threshing floors and drinking troughs will make of this beautiful path a true pleasure for nature lovers. From this track we will make out high peaks in the topography of Cadiz such as El Reloj (1,535 m), El Simancón (1,569 m) and El Torreón (1,648 m), highest in the province.

GARGANTA VERDE

Garganta Verde is a spectacular canyon of rock resulting from the lashing of the waters of Brook Boca-leones, and ending in a cavity known as Cueva de la Ermita or Ermita de la Garganta. Due to its similarity with the cupula of a religious temple. In addition, this emblematic enclave is the habitat of an important colony of griffin vultures. This is a restricted access area, which requires of a special permit issued by the Consejería de Medio Ambiente of the Andalusian government.

LLANOS DEL REPUBLICANO

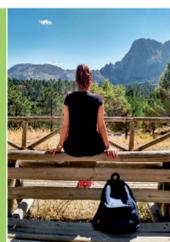

The itinerary starts in Villaluenga del Rosario and comes to an end in Los Llanos de Libar, previously passing through Los Llanos del Republicano, which gives name to the route. The entire route will let us appreciate important geological formations and impressive views. A sensation of isolation, peace and calm prevails in this place and accompanies the hiker throughout its length. There are a number of chasms along the trail, which recommend walking with due caution. Because of the presence of cattle, all fences need to be closed as we proceed.

EL PINSAPAR

We begin the path that connects Grazalema and Benamahoma with a climb up the north slopes of the Sierra del Pinar, which grants a view in the distance of Grazalema, Ronda, the Sierra de las Nieves and even Sierra Nevada. The main attraction lies in contemplating the pinsapars (Spanish firs) which at first are dispersed, and then, in shaded areas, become a dense, thick, lush and magical forest. This path has restricted access, requiring a special permit issued by the Consejería de Medio Ambiente of the Andalusian government.

EL TORREÓN

El Torreón (1,648 m) is the highest peak of both the Sierra del Pinar and the whole province of Cadiz. The climb to its summit, of considerable difficulty, offers the appeal of unvalued views of the Sierra de Grazalema, Los Alcornocales and even the Cadiz coastline. The initial Mediterranean forest formation makes way for the naked rock at its summit where, with any luck, one can discern Iberian wild goats. This path has restricted access, requiring a special permit issued by the Consejería de Medio Ambiente of the Andalusian government.

E.N. de Doñana

CERRO DEL ÁGUILA

Departing from the farming colony of La Algaída, we can cover the route leading to the pine forest of Monte Algaída, a repopulated forest where we will be able to find marshland shacks, a typical example of popular architecture. Circling the pine forest, we come across a sandy area surrounded by marshes and an elevation which has traditionally named this path.

R.N. Peñón de Zaframagón

VÍA VERDE DE LA SIERRA

This greenway, designed in the 30s, joins the towns of Olvera and Puerto Serrano via an old train track (never used for that purpose). This beautiful landscape route progresses parallel to the banks of rivers Guadalete and Guadalquivir, among its points of interest, the Peñón de Zaframagón, with a relevant colony of griffin vultures; the Junta de los Ríos; and the Chaparero de la Vega (natural monument). There are 30 tunnels, viaducts and stations along its course.

Long-Distance Paths

CORREDOR VERDE DOS BAHÍAS

With its 93 km, the Corredor Verde Dos Bahías runs northwest-southeast, entirely on cattle routes of the province of Cadiz, from Puerto Real to Los Barrios, through the municipalities of Medina Sidonia and Benalup-Casas Viejas.

Part of its route goes into the Los Alcornocales Natural Park, making it an ideal setting for tourist and recreational activities.
